

CATTLE JUDGING REPORT BY ANGELA HILL (2016)

When Sam Dovey asked me if I'd judge the NFPB&CS cattle classes I didn't realise what an interesting, albeit long, day it would be.

All the cattle were in great condition and judging one breed against another isn't easy...good structure, neat hooves, tidy udders and meaty rumps all helped me to decide. Temperament is important as well, especially in the animals that run on the forest.

There were 60 entries (with some in more than one class), so remembering all the cattle throughout the day wasn't easy! I was very pleased with the class winners from what was an excellent entry by members. It was very close, with my champion Cuffnells Nightjar, just having the edge!

Thank you for the opportunity to judge the cattle...I really did enjoy it.
