

M51/298 Churchmeadow Belle 2009
(Lovelyhill High-Jack / Churchmeadow Secret by Fury II)
Bred by James Pearce.

I had an unregistered New Forest Pony once...he was 4 when I bought him and 28 when he died and I never thought I'd ever find another. One day I was browsing NFED and a little black registered New Forest looked out at me from a photo, and I fell in love. Crazy - I've had ponies all my life, 50 years or so, and I know you don't buy a pony from a photo...but I bought Churchmeadow Belle from Kate and Julie Brown!

I have a Riding school in Lincolnshire but we are only small, most of the ponies only have 2 or 3 regular riders and they do Pony Club and local competitions and shows and in the summer also become holiday ponies, where one child looks after one pony for the whole week. Kate and Julie were happy for their pony to join this situation, so Belle arrived.

We have had Belle four years now New Forest pony...only 12.2hh, but ponies at dressage, games and the ground by the smallest child, been in my house, in a tent at Pony classroom full of 7-9yr olds.

Don't get saint, and jumps huge stick with riders so tends to be ridden by children off a lead rein. She has also been borrowed twice by our instructor when her own horse was out of action, once for a Games team and once for a Dressage team.

Lora is 5ft 9 and 9stone...Belle wasn't bothered in the least and went like a bullet and loved games, the dressage judge did say Lora looked a 'little big' but certainly wasn't too heavy for a 'one off'!

She loves being dressed up by kids, she loves drinking out of the hose on the yard, and she loves upsetting my goats by squeezing in their tiny shelter and eating their hay.

Belle is doing her best to promote the breed up here in the Midlands...and whatever she does good or bad, I just love her to bits!

Sue Evans

and she is the typical versatile has beaten bigger horses and jumping. She can be handled on and will go anywhere - she's Club Camp, and recently in a me wrong, no pony is 100% a Belle has her moments! She and it is hard to find a child to her. She also hates lead rein

